

Mansi Chandna is the Monitoring and Evaluation Officer at FODIP.

With an academic background in Religion, Psychology, and Anthropology, Mansi also has a Postgraduate Degree in Peace and Conflict Studies. She has worked extensively with vulnerable women and underprivileged children during the pandemic in India, focusing on education and development. She currently leads a World Affairs Module for underprivileged youth in India challenging normative political narratives and promoting a nuanced understanding of Global Affairs. She has also successfully led campaigns to raise awareness about Islamophobia, antisemitism, patriarchy, casteism and other social crimes. Mansi is passionate about interfaith dialogue, peace building and humanitarian diplomacy.

She is looking forward to exploring the impact of various approaches to peace.
